

Submitting your book proposal

Thank you for considering Emerging Scholars Initiative for publication of your manuscript. ESI Press welcomes new book proposals in any field. The proposal you submit will be the basis upon which we judge your book's suitability for publication. The following guidelines are designed to help you prepare your proposal so that it successfully provides the information required to assess the viability of your work as a book.

Please include the following in your book proposal:

- The provisional book title
- Current curriculum vitae of the author/s or volume editor/s, including address, telephone number, email and current position
- Synopsis of the book:
  - 100–350 word description of the book
  - The estimated length of the book
  - Number of illustrations, graphs or tables that are to appear in the book
  - Table of contents with brief descriptions of each chapter
  - Introductory chapter and a sample chapter
  - Details of any deadlines that we need to work around
- Indicate whether any of the chapters/ sections of the book has already been published and whether you are willing to revise the chapter or source permission from the original publisher

Submissions

All book proposals should be submitted on the ESI Press website here. The proposal will be submitted to the ESI Press editorial board which will assess the strengths of the proposal and make a decision on the publication.
